AGRIBON PLANT PROTECTION

PRE-SALE

We are excited to offer the chance to pre-order Agribon™ row cover between now and February 11th. We do not normally stock all of the options below, so this is your chance to get just the size and weight of Agribon you want! Order deadline is Friday, February 11th, 2022.

Agribon™ produces some of the highest quality and most affordable row covers found on the market today! Their row cover is non-woven and made from spun polypropylene. One big difference between Agribon™ and comparable products on the market is the fact that Agribon™ features a double-bonded glued seam as opposed to a single-bonded woven one. Their row covers are also treated with a UV stabilizer for added durability. Depending on the row cover weight and application, Agribon™ Row Covers can last for several seasons and give you years of use.

Why use a Row Cover you ask?! In short, Row Covers provide many different types of protection for your plants and can extend growing seasons, increase germination rates, and increase yields! Row cover protects your seeds, seedlings, and full grown plants from a number of environmental stressors including: sudden temperature swings, severe winds, extreme cold, intense sunlight/UV exposure, soil surface evaporation, and more! This can result in better germination and extended growing seasons.

Row cover can also protect your plants from unwanted pests! Insects will have a hard time getting to your crops, and this can result in a reduced need for pesticides. You can also protect your seeds/seedlings from pesky birds, or squirrels and rabbits looking to investigate your crops.

AGRIBON AG-15

The AG-15 is Agribon's lightest weight row cover and comes in at .45 oz. per square yard of fabric. AG-15 will provide nominal frost protection and permits 90% of light to pass through, as well as rain/moisture. This weight of row cover is great for insect protection and can greatly reduce the need for pesticides. Also helps keep dust off plants, improve germination, keeps birds off your seeds, and reduces wind stress.

AGRIBON AG-30

The AG-30 is a medium-weight row cover that provides up to 4-6°F degrees of protection down to 26-28°F. Weighing in at .9 oz. per square yard, AG-30 offers significantly more protection than the lighter weights and still has a 70% light transmission. AG-30 is a great option for our Southeastern region and is the most common weight sold in this area for frost protection. This weight of fabric is a great option for season extension, winter gardening, improved seed germination, and protecting sensitive annual/perennial plants. Will also protect from insects and birds, as well as wind and other elements.

AGRIBON AG-70

As you might expect, the AG-70 bring some serious frost protection. 2 oz. per square yard results in 8°F+ of frost protection. This product is intended for more serious cold/freezes or protecting your most sensitive plants. Due to the heavier weight, you should only expect 30% of light to transmit through the fabric. This heavyweight fabric is a good option for protection during serious frosts/temperature drops, season extension, protecting sensitive perennials/annuals, and more! Will provide the same protection from birds, insects, and the elements as the lighter weights.
